Processes that SHAPE the EARTH

Interactive Notebook

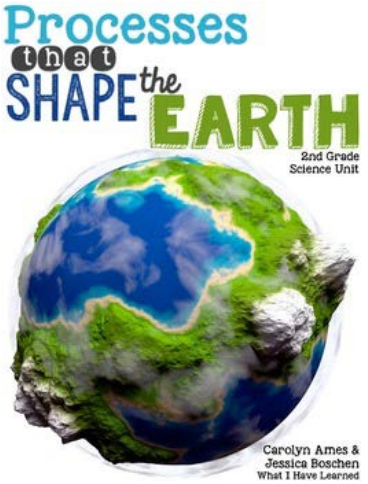
Teacher Notes

These activities compliment my other Processes that Shape the Earth product, which includes text, before reading and after reading activities. The other product is focused on developing students' language skills around a specific concept and close reading a text to find details and information.

This product is different in that it gives students activities and experiences with the vocabulary and concepts outside of and beyond the text. It is an interactive notebook resource that has students cut, match, glue, and write about what they learned. This product extends the learning after students have read and talked about the text.



This Interactive Notebook resource compliments my other product, but it can also stand alone and be used with different text. As long as students are learning the about the Next Generation Science Standards Earth Science for second grade, they will be able to do the activities in this resource.

The pages in this resource are created for full 8 1/2 x 11 pages. If you are using composition books, you may want to reduce the printing size for the full-page resources. Reducing it to about 70-75% either when printing or on your copy machine should work. Another option is to select "print two on one page". This reduced the size and saves paper!

If you have any questions about how to use any of the resources in this product, please email me (commonthreads@me.com) and I'll respond promptly. The following pages are additional photos you may find useful.
